FEV FOREVER ENTERTAINING

"LIES, lies!" Brendan Fevola replied to a tweet promoting Roger Franklin's Fev Unauthorised.

It would be a "terrible book" the former AFL spearhead declared. It is not. Franklin has produced an entertaining account of Fevola's controversial career.

SPROUT PROGRAM MEMBERS SHOW THEIR QUALITY SHOTS

SEEING the world from a different perspective is helping a group of people recovering from mental illness find their voice.

For the past six months, the group of six from Thornbury-based mental health recovery programme Sprout have been going out on field trips around the city photographing people, places and things that interest them.

Project leader Nikki Blanch said the program has helped foster confidence in the budding photographers as they head out into the community.

With a background in photography, Ms Blanch came up with the idea when she came to the organisation, seeing photography as a great social tool.

"I've found this project has not only given them new skills but, more importantly, given them confidence to get out into the community, taking part and engaging with strangers," she said.

"When they first started they were very shy about taking pictures or getting in front of the camera, but they've just grown so much in confidence." The group then put together quality pictures for an exhibition of their work.

They came back and impressed Ms Blanch with the pictures that she organised for them to go on display at the The Old Fire Station Cafe in Preston.

The exhibition runs until August 29.
